

"Use All The Crayons!"

Keynote

Even the most devoted sourpusses walk away from a "Use All The Crayons!" presentation refreshed by the urge to enjoy being human and enjoy human beings. The message is so humorous, so embraceable, so joyful and so reliably uplifting that two of the most frequent comments assert that Chris Rodell should either be a stand-up comic or a preacher. It's that sparkling mixture of laughter and genuine human empathy that makes the colorful message resonate with every single demographic. The reason for this is Rodell is unafraid to shed a typical reluctance to acknowledge all the universal hardships that descend unbidden into each and every life. These life challenges are the very reason why it is more than ever the essential duty of every individual to armor themselves with love, laughter and one another. Thus, every attendee leaves with a soulful appreciation of just how many happy colors their lives add to the lives of those they love and that together the ability to brighten the whole world dwells within each of us. That euphoric ability is liberated whenever anyone begins to "Use All The Crayons!"

Requested honoraria for one hour presentation: TBD within your budget

Chris Rodell

www.UseAllTheCrayons.com

724 961-2558

storyteller@chrisrodell.com

Colorful Living Tip No. 437: "Tell people the only time bitch, bitch, bitch ever turns into something positive is when you're running a robust dog grooming business."